DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL AND OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH
Student Scholarly Professional Conference Participation Support

This year the Department of Environmental and Occupational Health will help to support the professional development of its students through their active participation in professional conferences as presenters and attendees. Funding in the amount up to $1,000 per student currently enrolled will be available to offset travel expenses, poster production costs, and registration fees.

Your participation in professional meetings and conferences provides an opportunity to further your scholarly experience by presenting your findings and sharing your research, broadening your awareness of your field by attending sessions, and networking with colleagues in your field of study. Your presentations in these venues bring visibility and credit to you, your department, and GWU.

We encourage students interested to seek approval by sending an email requesting their intentions and indicating which professional conference they are targeting to attend and present: send to Dr. Melissa Perry, Chair of the Department of Environmental and Occupational Health at mperry@gwu.edu.

Once approved, students will be authorized to receive up to $1,000 per student in reimbursement after their attendance and participation. Within ten days of your return, please submit your reimbursement to include the following:

- Email approval
- Original receipts (airfare, registration, etc.)
