EXTRAMURAL RESEARCH FUNDING

Grants Awarded

Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA),
Maternal and Child Health Bureau (MCHB)
GW Maternal and Child Health (MCH) Leadership, Education, and Advancement in Undergraduate Pathways (LEAP)
Training Program (GW-LEAP into MCH). Award amount:
$775,000

Ruiz (Co-Investigator)

06/01/2021-05/30/2026

The primary goals of the GW-LEAP into MCH are: (1) Recruit and support undergraduate trainees from diverse, underserved, and/or underrepresented backgrounds to: Increase the number of undergraduate students from underrepresented backgrounds exposed to learning opportunities in MCH; Promote development and interest in careers in MCH; and increase their cultural responsiveness and skills in addressing health disparities in underserved communities. (2) Foster development of interdisciplinary leadership and research skills training at the undergraduate level in MCH public health and MCH-related health professions in preparation for careers in MCH. (3) Provide mentorship and internship opportunities to undergraduate students through preceptorships with MCH professionals, graduate students, and MCH/Title V organizations in preparation for graduate/post-graduate education/training in MCH. (4) Increase access to MCH undergraduate education and training through innovative and alternative methods.

Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA)
Maternal and Child Health Bureau (MCHB),
Centers of Excellence for Maternal and Child Health
Award amount: $1.75 M ($350,000/year)

Ruiz (Co-Director)

05/01/2020-04/30/2025

The goal of this project is to establish the George Washington University Center of Excellence in Maternal and Child Health Education, Science, Practice, and Policy. This Center of Excellence will build upon existing programs and partnerships to address unmet Maternal and Child Health (MCH) workforce needs, with the objective of addressing the compelling need in the District of Columbia which exceeds national health disparities in MCH categories.

Milken Institute School of Public Health.
George Washington University
Research Enhancement Award
Award amount: $1,500

Ruiz (PI)

10/30/2019-10/30/2020
(extension being sought due to COVID-19 shutdown)

This intramural award was provided for the work being done on Holistic Impact of Gentrification and Housing: Reasons to Influence Structural Equity (HIGH RISE), a pilot study aimed at examining how environmental and structural factors such as urban gentrification affect access to relevant health and social services among marginalized individuals, many of whom are unstably housed or homeless and who are unable to travel long distances to access care. These funds will be used to support the collection of qualitative data that will further explain/add depth to the quantitative data collected to date, as well as help to generate ideas for potential interventions for this population.

Impact Evaluation of a Policy Intervention for HIV Prevention in Washington, DC

(5/1/15-4/30/16: NCE#1

5/1/16-4/30/17: NCE#2

Award amount: $1,539,317

5/1/17-4/30/18: NCE#3)

This project: (1) conducted an impact evaluation to determine whether or not the change in syringe exchange funding policy in Washington, DC, is associated with increased access to syringe exchange services, and increased linkage to other relevant HIV prevention services for IDU; (2) examined the impact of these changes on new cases of HIV infection associated with IDU reported in the District of Columbia; and (3) conducted a comparative policy analysis of the Washington, DC, experience and the experience of two other cities where policy changes were necessary for municipal support of syringe exchange programs to determine how these changes in policy affected HIV prevention efforts targeting injection drug using populations.

Capture-Recapture Study of IDU in the District of Columbia

(5/1/15-4/30/16: NCE#1

5/1/16-4/30/17: NCE#2

Award amount: $50,820

5/1/17-4/30/18: NCE#3)

This award was an administrative supplement to 1R01DA031649-01A1, "Impact evaluation of a policy intervention for HIV prevention in Washington, DC" (a.k.a., DC POINTE). The goal of the project was to calculate an accurate estimate of the population size of injection drug users (IDUs) in the District of Columbia using a capture-recapture study methodology. There is currently no valid estimate of the IDU population size in the District of Columbia and no sound data source has been found that would the calculation of a reliable estimate. Without a reliable estimate, it is difficult to evaluate the efficacy of the current needle exchange services available and their effectiveness in decreasing the spread of HIV in this population. A strong and reliable estimate of the IDU population is critical for the accuracy and validity of the intervention impact modeling that was proposed as part of the grant.

Epidemiology of drug use, HIV/AIDS and high risk behaviors in Egypt

(2/1/16-1/31/17: NCE)

(PI: Amira Roess, PhD, MPH)

Award amount: $264,725

This study: (1) determined the prevalence and co-infection rates of sexually transmitted infections, HCV, and HIV, among 200 current and 400 recovering injection drug users (IDU) accessing addiction treatment facilities, and (2) assessed knowledge, attitudes, and behaviors (KABs) related to sexual and injection-associated transmission of STI, HCV and HIV among Egyptian IDU, including understanding the social and contextual factors that led to their addiction.
