Mission

The mission of the Department of Prevention and Community Health in graduating Doctoral-level professionals within this specialty field is to create a cadre of professionals who are uniquely equipped to provide leadership at the in the field of Health Behavior. The DrPH program in Health Behavior is based on the ecological model of health and well-being and is aimed at understanding and having an impact on the health of populations and cultures, with special emphasis upon underserved populations. Our graduates are prepared to apply their research and analytic skills to a range of implementation, evaluation, and advocacy needs of various cultural and socioeconomic groups and communities.

Admissions Requirements

The Doctor of Public Health Program is designed for professionals seeking to become public health leaders. Applicants who have completed an MPH degree from a Council of Education for Public Health (CEPH) accredited program are strongly preferred for admission to the DrPH Program. Alternatively, applicants with a master's degree in another field may indicate their relevant training, research experience, or educational background comparable to the MPH. Doctoral applicants admitted without an MPH will be required to take additional course work at the graduate level that does not apply toward the minimum 48 credits required. For the DrPH, qualified applicants with degrees from institutions in foreign countries are also eligible for admission. All applicants must submit scores from the Graduate Record Exam (GRE) taken within five years of the date of application. Because admission to this program is highly selective, successful applicants have competitive academic credentials and substantial prior public health professional work experience related to the specialty field to which they are applying.

DrPH Competencies

The Doctor of Public Health (DrPH) Program prepares professionals to assume national and international leadership positions in environmental and occupational health, global health, health behavior, and health policy. The field of public health provides unique insights into the complex interrelationships between health, politics, and human development. It enables professionals to address public health issues by marshalling research and analytic skills to develop innovative approaches to understand health and to promote and advocate for improved health outcomes. Upon completion of the DrPH, students in all programs will demonstrate ability in the core competencies listed at the end of this document.

Program-Specific Competencies

On completion of the DrPH Program, students will possess the following functional competencies and subject area knowledge:

- Assess public health problems; analyze quantitative data; and design public health studies including sampling and hypothesis testing. Evaluation based on completion of courses, comprehensive examination, and dissertation defense. PUBH 8408, PUBH 8409
- Use the basic concepts of public health practice and the philosophy of social science to justify dissertation research. Evaluation will be based on completion of appropriate courses, comprehensive examination, and dissertation defense. PUBH 8408, PUBH 8409
- Identify an area of interest within public health and develop a level of knowledge that will allow use of appropriate conceptual or theoretical models and build on the current state of the art in that topic area. Develop research agendas and questions. Completion of individualized study courses, doctoral seminars, and the comprehensive examination will assess preparation in this area. PUBH 8408, PUBH 8409
- Attain the skills necessary to conduct doctoral level research that involves a problem-based inquiry in a real world setting in student's specialty area of public health. Evaluation will be based on successful defense of a dissertation proposal and final dissertation. PUBH 8408, PUBH 8409
